

Little brother the princess

Cecilia Ingard

Boksidan

Little brother the princess

Cecilia Ingard

Translated from Swedish to English, by Google translator and Gunnar Björing.

Copyright: Boksidan 2014
Box 558
146 33 Tullinge

Little brother the princess, ISBN: 978-91-88109-21-7

Visit www.boksidan.com!

Today there will be a party for her parent's princess.
Thus she puts on a ditto dress.

For little brother there is a suit, which for him is a pain.
Thus his mother's efforts to put it on are all in vain.

Here is the party table.
Each glass with a guests name label.

The guests are waiting for the cake to come.
But where has little brother gone?

Under the table search at least two, but even that won't do.

Someone heard a cry, one can wonder why?
I want to be a princess too; els or you have to let me go!

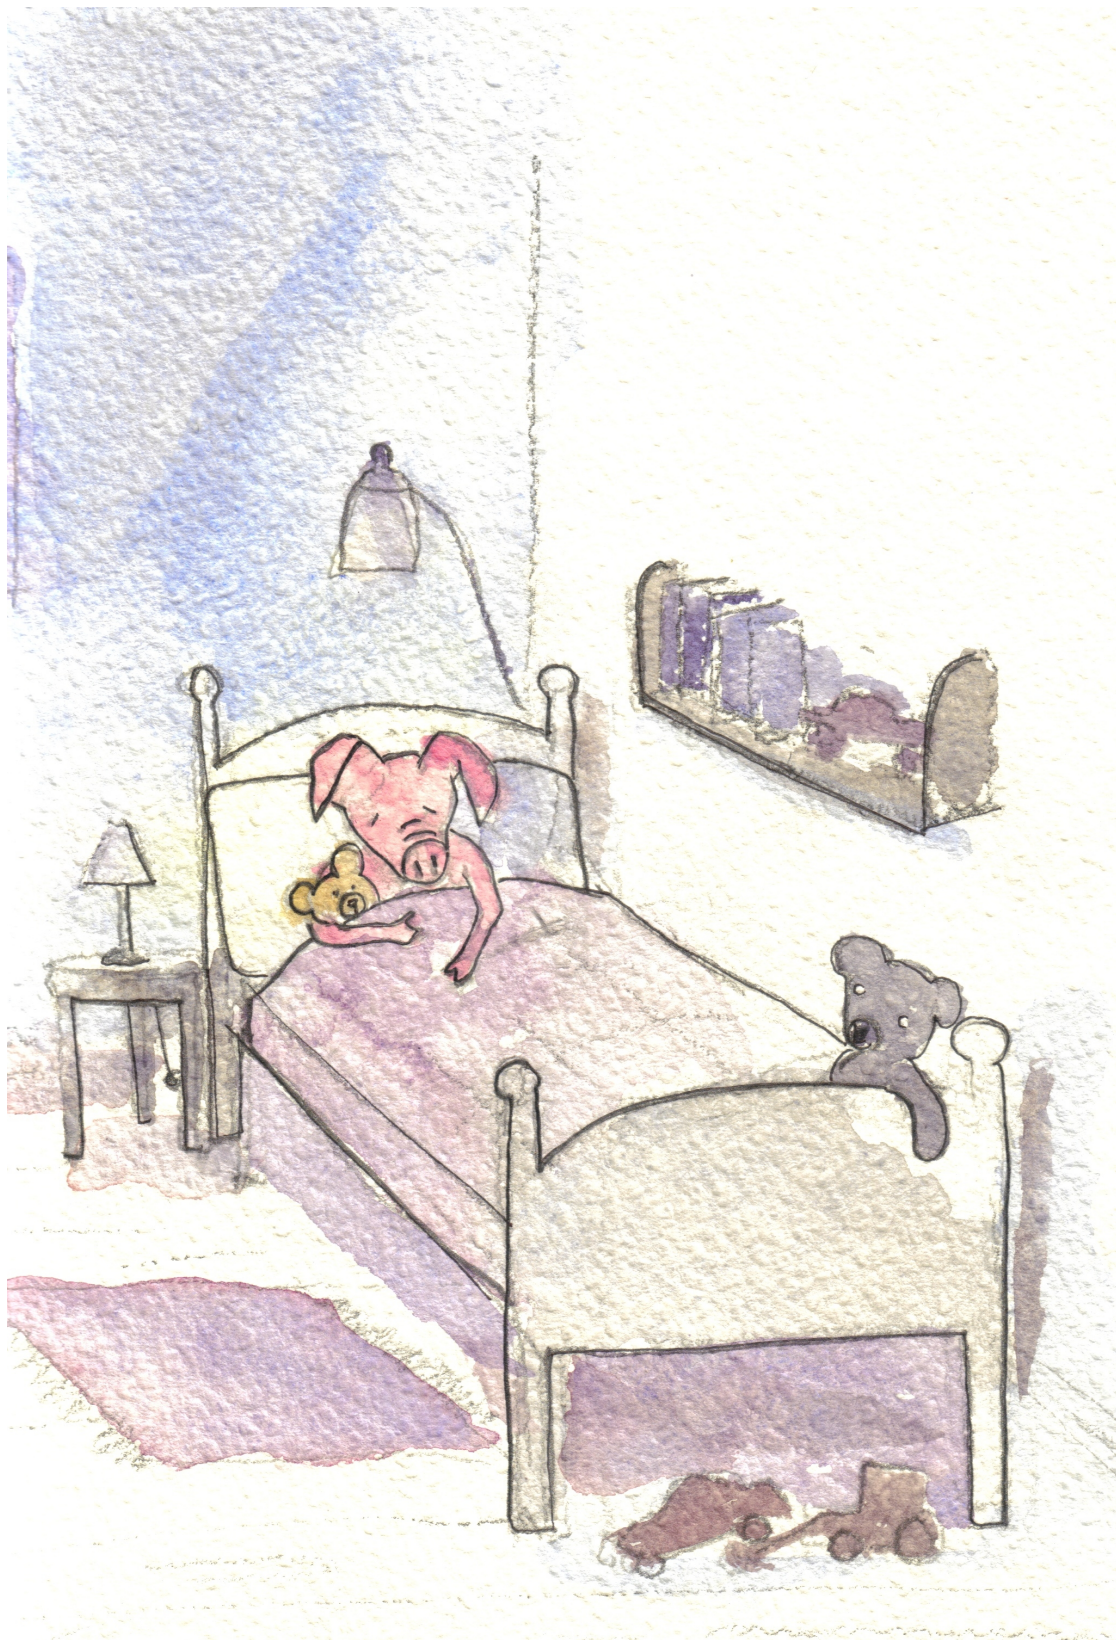

Okay today you don't need a shirt, my boy, wear instead this red skirt!

All the guests then want a crown, and dad can't let them down.

Later in his sister's care, she makes him aware.
A skirt makes you a gay, so now put it away!

But as he lays there weeping, he hear something piping.

There, under the bed, a house and in the door king mouse.

I'm your fantasy prince, here homophobia newer wins!

The days sweet hereafter were then filled with his laughter!